He sits on his porch. Blows the dust off his hands. The sun is setting. The world will begin soon. He sighs, remembering the days when the world turned upon the earth. He is brave but small. He he showed when solving riddles. He slips his hand into his "pocketses" and feels the shiny circle of metal inside it. But he won't take it out, his adventures are just a memory. He won't need it...

Chapter 4 by -

Once weak and short. Left out from his part in the country, of doing a man's duty. Then transformed to immense strength. Saves hundreds. Falls in love (of course). Wallah!

A Captain is born - he will Make America Great Again!

Chapter 5 by -

Enshrouded in a black cloak, lined in red silk. With eyes of flashing fire and fangs like shiny porcelain. He can only thrive through the pulsing blood of the living. He can only seek victims by the light of the ashen moon.

This creature can travel by fog, wolf, or bat. He is dreaded by all, and yet the master of many.

Stowed away in a coffin during the day, one can only kill him by staking him in the heart. For he is part of those called the un-dead. Neither living nor dying. Only existing...

Chapter 6 by -

Who would have guessed that one could find so much pleasure in science? That one could live and breath chemical reactions and math equations...

Who would have thought is possible to create that which no one has ever been able to create? That which is seen as meddlesome and unearthly...

Alone. Solitude. Madness. Alone. Solitude. Madness.

He worked and slaved and worked and slaved until he seemed but a wisp of a degenerating man. Pouring all his time and energy into a creature. A form. A thing such as himself.

And it was indeed possible to create both a man and...

Chapter 7 by Kenzawenzo

She was almost a hatstall, and soon everyone found out why.

She was sorted into the house for the brave and daring, but she was more clever than most, which is the trait of another house.

But although many often questioned the Sorting Hat's hard choice, words once spoken by her had strongly supported his choice; "Books and cleverness! There are more important things -- friendship and bravery".

Chapter 8 by -

With a haircut like the Beatles, this guy is loved by many girls.

He has mastery over a galactic force, but only after much training and tests. He sticks to his own side even through extreme influence and an intense power struggle.

Most notable are his garb and weapon. Not to mention his side-bunned sister...
